At the Wellington meeting it was determined that the current definition of "Product" was both too broad and included terms that were not universally useful. It was determined that to address the needs of the new Drug Concept Model and to make sure that the definition of products in the International release is consistent with the content.