relationshipGroup (field)

Field in the Relationship File is used to group Relationships together for a concept. For example, where a particular type of prosthesis is inserted a joint, the Defining characteristics describing the prosthesis type would be in one group whereas those describing the location or laterality of the joint would be in another group.